

ELG, 16th handout, sentences from study sessions

1. Because the water had been tainted with ink, the writer who/m many thought to be insane was simply poisoned by her own misguided action.

2. The question is whether or not they should vacation in Cleveland.

OR

The question is whether they should vacation in Cleveland or not.

3. The sickly ghoul was going about moaning to everyone it met while it hovered through the hallways of the castle.

4. The walking and talking throughout the concert mightily disturbed the lone performer on stage as she began beating the drums and attempted to twirl the harp.

5. Whoever runs in the race will surely catch a cold because everyone knows colds are caused by evil running germs.

ELG, 16th handout, sentences from study sessions

6. Whoever wore the medallion of power gave Johnny Boy whatever he asked for because Johnny Boy was a very good fox.

7. Johnny Boy tried to make his little fox guitar rock and roll all night long.

8. Whoever uses toothpaste is wasting their money because brushing without paste is just as good.

9. Bill DeForest, who is fifty this week, looked back and saw Mr. Powers walk into the classroom, so he did what seemed appropriate and jumped out of the third floor window into deep snow.

10. On a warm spring day during their junior year in high school, Billy and Cueball decided to skip Mr. Reeder's typing class by jumping out of the first-floor classroom window when Mr. Reeder was not looking.

11. I don't think this sentence is all that much easier than the others I thought of.

{This is Matt's sentence.}