

These Sentences Should be Informative

1. The card shark, who/m Jacee thought was an amateur, shuffled the deck and began to deal.
2. The shark, whose name was Tanner, didn't think much of Jacee, who/m he believed others rightfully made fun of.
3. There was a moment before the game started when both stared across the table at the other.
4. That old coot thought Jacee.
5. "That insufferable witch," whispered Tanner to no one in particular, reading her mind.
6. Tanner dealt the table the cards.
7. The cards were dealt to the table.
8. Jacee was dealt a difficult, low-point hand.

9. Because her hand was poor, she understood that her greatest skill was necessary.

10. Noticing her look of concentration, Tanner smiled, wondering why she thought she could get the better of a master like himself.

11. Even though they had played every week for three and a half years, Jacee had yet to win a game.

12. The game began when the cards were dealt.

13. Jacee thought that she had better play it cool this time.

13. Last week, she had tossed an ashtray that hadn't been used in thirty years.

14. That it was still sitting in the card room was a testament to the club's conservatism.

15. Now that she had control of her situation, she decided to act.