

It is late on a weekday night — getting close to midnight, when one LITT student turns the corner of the Z stacks in reference and is nearly plowed down by an agitated classmate. The agitated student has hair sticking straight off in a strange angle, his shirt is untucked, 5 pens are in his front pocket, one has no cap.

“What’s up with you?”

“I need the answer to a question but there’s no way in!”

The harried student waves a slip of paper at his companion.

“What’s the question?”

“Explain the community based fruits of Literary Labor as manifested at one Eastern State School in South Jersey.”

Flyer Committee 2 S2005

“That’s it? That’s all it says?”

“Well, it also says: ‘No more than 15 sources please’ and ‘Don’t use Google.’”

Perplexed, the student rests his hand against a shelved book, then absent-mindedly opens it to read:

The Really, Really Big
LITT / LANG
End of Year
Workshop Bash

Friday, April 15, 4:30 till whenever

In the Townsend Residential Life Center Multi-Purpose Room