

Newly discovered excerpts from the Life of Johnson

“Tell me, Sir, what do you regret most about your days at Oxford?” queried Boswell, “Your failure to take a degree, perhaps? Or those shoes that pride made you toss away?”

“Nothing of the sort, dear James. I most regret that Oxford never devised a Bash such as that at the former Stockton State College, now the Richard Stockton College of New Jersey--a really, really, big Holiday Workshop BASH! I regret that dear old Oxford had nothing to match that storied gathering of literati.”

“You may be the most un-Scottified of your brethren, Mr. Boswell, but you are still a Scot!”

“Do you want a famous biography or shall I just play bagpipes at your funeral!”

Please announce to the Literati:

The Really, Really Big Lit/Lang Holiday Workshop Bash.

Friday Dec. 10th, 4:30-6:00, N-115
