

The Richard Stockton College of New Jersey Literature and Language Program Presents

Ladies and gentlemen, professors of all ages, it's that time of year again. It's time for the Semi-Annual Litt/Lang Bash. You regretted not going last semester and the semester before that. Don't be left out again. Come to the Litt/Lang Bash, Tuesday, May 7 at five o'clock in the experimental theater.

This semester we have a stupendous array of entertainment. To start off the evening we will have poetry readings, then Request Stop, a one act play by Harold Pinter. Finally, there will be the world premiere of Solitaire, by the world famous playwright (not quite yet) and Stockton Student Jeff Johnson. How much would you expect to pay for all this...twenty dollars, thirty dollars. No it's all free. That's right free. How can you beat that? But wait, there's more. After the performance the Literature and Language program will hold a reception for graduating seniors, their families, friends and alumni in Room N-115. So don't be left out come to the Litt/Lang Bash.
