

An Evening of 10 Minute Plays

This Thursday – March 7 – The Noyes Museum of Art @ 8PM

Five 10 Minute Plays from Stockton students make their premiere! Free admission!

Plays will be read in reader's theatre style with no set pieces or effects.

Evening will include discussion with playwrights, facilitated by Adjunct Professor John Perovich.

Love is Blind | By Aaron Miles

A chance meeting turns into a lifelong friendship, complete with twists and turns of the heart.

Ancora Qui | By Jordan Johnson

A daughter remembers the day that changed her life forever.

Babbling Blight | By Julian Vicente

A group of teenagers, an urban legend...the real horror may be closer than they think.

The I.V. Ceases its Last Drop | By Chris Bryz-Gornia

Florence is receiving "treatment" for a crime he doesn't remember committing.

Death of a Businessman | By Renee Fern

Haberdash and Wackson are on the scene to solve a recent, ghastly mystery.

The Noyes Museum of Art is located at 733 Lily Lake Road, Oceanville, NJ 08231

About the Venue:

Opened in 1983, The Noyes Museum of Art was the vision of local entrepreneurs Fred W. and Ethel (Lingelbach) Noyes, Jr. who were avid art and antique collectors. Fred was also an academically trained artist and produced many works which reflect his love of southern New Jersey's natural features. His art and personal collection of vintage bird decoys are now a part of the Museum's vast permanent collection of 19th to 21st century fine and folk art.

Please contact John Perovich with questions at 609.436.0822 or john.perovich@stockton.edu.