Section II: WGSS Goals and Learning Outcomes for the Minor

The Women's, Gender and Sexuality Studies' curriculum facilitates critical thinking, student and faculty engagement, and an awareness and appreciation of diverse cultures and experiences by developing competency in feminist activism, theory, and methods. In particular, the WGSS minor will be able to demonstrate achievement in the objectives listed below.

Not every WGSS course will address all of these outcomes, but to be approved for the minor, a course must, in a meaningful way, meet objectives 1 and/or 2, as well as at least two additional objectives.

Please check which learning outcomes your course addresses, and describe how each of these checked goals are engaged concretely in your course. We request that you do not simply state, "see syllabus."

__1 Identifying and defining fundamental principles, generalizations, or theories related to the study of women, gender and sexuality

__2 Applying feminist theories and methods to multiple academic disciplines and texts as well as to experiences beyond the classroom

__3 Analyzing and critically evaluating global and national perspectives and representations related to women, gender and sexuality

__4 Engaging with communities, from the local to the global, through feminist activism and scholarship

__5 Developing a clearer understanding of and commitment to personal values

__6 Developing skill in expressing oneself orally and in writing
